DEFENDANT FULBRIGHT & JAWORSKI, LLP'S REPLY IN SUPPORT OF ITS MOTION TO EXCLUDE THE TESTIMONY OF ALAN MacPHERSON

COMES NOW, Fulbright & Jaworski, LLP ("Fulbright"), and files this Reply in Support of Its Motion to Exclude the Testimony of Alan MacPherson, and in support thereof, would respectfully show the Court as follows:

Plaintiffs make the misleading claim that MacPherson has not ventured beyond the written record to proffer his opinion as to the rationale behind the PTO Examiner's determination that the Plaintiffs had overcome the Nosé reference. They quote in their brief the statement from MacPherson that "this argument was not only relied upon, it actually overcame the rejection based on Nosé et al. . . ." (Opposition, p. 6.) In light of the testimony cited in Fulbright's Motion to Exclude, Plaintiffs' obstinate insistence that MacPherson has not strayed from the written record is silly. Following is the sum total of the Examiner's "written" discussion of what overcame the Nosé reference:

The declaration . . . filed 1/17/96 is sufficient to overcome the rejection of claims 1 - 8 based upon Lee et al. and Nosé et al.

(Exhibit B, F&J 02762) As discussed in the Motion to Exclude, the referenced declaration does not so much as mention the Nosé reference, and MacPherson acknowledges that he does not know the "true reason" for overcoming the reference. Nothing in the written record supports MacPherson's conclusion, and Plaintiffs proffer no evidence to the contrary.

Plaintiffs then go on to state that MacPherson should be permitted to testify as to Plaintiffs' "entitlement" to broader claim language, regardless of whether the Examiner would have accepted the hypothetical arguments and claims language suggested by MacPherson. The discussion is notable for its dearth of citation to authority. (Opposition, pp. 6-8.) It is also remarkable for its suggestion that "Mr. MacPherson will testify as to plaintiff's clear legal entitlement to broader claim coverage," as if there is a black-and-white answer to the question of whether a certain claim will issue from the patent prosecution process. MacPherson apparently does not share Plaintiffs' counsel's sanguinity:

Q. Would . . . you be able to guarantee to a client, if you were involved in prosecuting the '418 patent, that they would have a claim issued just by differentiating the Nosé reference based on the molecular weight exclusion of the inventor's technology?

A. Would I be able to guarantee?

Q. Right.

A. I think it's a good argument, and I don't guarantee.

Q. Would you be able to put a percentage chance of success on it?

A. I think it has merit to it.

Q. What percent?

A. I would hope that it would prevail, and that's all I would say.

Q. Your client asked you to handicap but you couldn't do it for him?

A. I don't handicap.

Q. Why not?

A. I just don't.

Q. It's too uncertain a process?

A. I just don't do it. It's not my practice. And maybe others do, but I just say, I think this is a good argument and let's put it in and see if we can convince the examiner.

(Exhibit C, pp. 205-06.) MacPherson tacitly acknowledges that some arguments raised during the prosecution process will not be successful, and that he would not guarantee the success of any argument.

Finally, Plaintiffs spill little ink (and apparently spent no time to go look at a law book – again, they cite not a single authority) in attempting to pull their gross negligence claim out of the fire. They assert that, despite MacPherson’s ignorance of the relevant standard of gross negligence and the fact that he did not evaluate components of that standard, he will be asked to testify as to various issues Plaintiffs claim are relevant to claims of gross negligence. It would be improper, however, for Plaintiffs to attempt to use MacPherson at the time of trial to establish elements of gross negligence that he assuredly did not raise in his expert report and as to which he was unprepared to testify at his deposition. For example, MacPherson should not be permitted to testify as to whether Fulbright’s legal work, “when viewed objectively from the standpoint of the actor at the time of its occurrence involves an extreme degree of risk, considering the probability and magnitude of the potential harm to others.” TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.001(11). Whether Fulbright’s actions, when viewed from the objective viewpoint of a patent attorney in 1996, involved an “extreme degree of risk,” is assuredly a matter that requires expert testimony. See Geiserman v. MacDonald, 893 F.2d 787, 793 (5th Cir. 1990) (“In most legal malpractice cases, ‘expert testimony is necessary to establish the standard of care since only an attorney can competently testify to whether the defendant comported to the prevailing legal standard.’”). But MacPherson cannot provide that necessary testimony: he acknowledged that he did not evaluate the degree of risk that might have been involved in a defendant’s acts or omissions. (Exhibit C, p. 93.)

CONCLUSION AND PRAYER

Fulbright respectfully submits that the Court should exclude MacPherson’s testimony regarding (1) the reasons that were or were not considered by the PTO Examiner in allowing the ‘418 claims, (2) what alternative hypothetical claims wording the Examiner would have allowed, and (3) alleged gross negligence and elements thereof, and not permit him to testify at trial regarding those topics.

Respectfully submitted,

1. The declaration under 37 C.F.R. § 1.132 filed 1/17/96 is sufficient to overcome the rejection of claims 1-8 based upon Lee et al. and Nose et al.
2. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) as being anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as obvious over Okamoto et al. Okamoto et al. disclose a method of continuous arteriovenous hemofiltration (CAVH) of animal with microglobulin which may cause sepsis, shock, or multiorgan system failure (see col. 15, line 40 - col. 17, line 42). The hemofilter used in Okamoto et al. is polysulfone filter having an effective sieving coefficient of 0.5 to 1.0 for toxic mediators with a molecular weight of less than or equal to 60,000 daltons (see col. 16, line 59 - col. 17, line 42; Table 3 in col. 17, particularly comparable examples 3 and 4 for albumin). The polysulfone may be capable of passing molecules with a molecular weight of about 70,000 daltons in the presence of blood.
3. Applicant's arguments filed 1/17/96 have been fully considered but they are not deemed to be persuasive. Applicants argue that Okamoto et al. does not teach that their polysulfone filter has a molecular exclusion of 100,000 to 150,000 daltons. However, Okamoto et al. does teach that their polysulfone filter has low permeability for albumin not more than 10% (see col. 3, lines 4-16) and this supports that their filter has a molecular exclusion of 100,000 to 150,000 daltons. Such evidence is bolstered by the declaration under 37 C.F.R. § 1.132 filed 1/17/96 by applicants which states that the polysulfone filter used in the claimed method has an albumin of less than or equal to 50%.

4. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 C.F.R. § 1.136(a).

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR RESPONSE TO THIS FINAL ACTION IS SET TO EXPIRE THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THIS ACTION. IN THE EVENT A FIRST RESPONSE IS FILED WITHIN TWO MONTHS OF THE MAILING DATE OF THIS FINAL ACTION AND THE ADVISORY ACTION IS NOT MAILED UNTIL AFTER THE END OF THE THREE-MONTH SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD, THEN THE SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD WILL EXPIRE ON THE DATE THE ADVISORY ACTION IS MAILED, AND ANY EXTENSION FEE PURSUANT TO 37 C.F.R. § 1.136(a) WILL BE CALCULATED FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THE ADVISORY ACTION. IN NO EVENT WILL THE STATUTORY PERIOD FOR RESPONSE EXPIRE LATER THAN SIX MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THIS FINAL ACTION.

16:39:20 1 reference didn't not have the molecular weight
16:39:25 2 exclusion of 100,000 to 150,000 Daltons.
16:39:30 3 Q. And without such a limitation wouldn't it
16:39:32 4 cover the invention that the plaintiffs were seeking a
16:39:37 5 patent for?
16:39:38 6 A. Well, it was cited by the examiner as 16:39:44 7 anticipating the Claims 1 to 8, and the response points
16:39:53 8 out that it doesn't anticipate because it lacks the
16:39:56 9 exclusion of 100- to 150,000 Daltons.
16:40:00 10 Q. Do you believe that to be a correct argument?
16:40:10 11 A. Well, it seems to have been an argument that 16:40:13 12 ultimately was successful.
16:40:16 13 Q. Do you believe it to be a correct argument?
16:40:17 14 A. I think so, yes.
16:40:18 15 Q. Based on what?
16:40:19 16 A. Based on the fact that this is an obvious
16:40:21 17 exclusion that would work in this particular context.
16:40:23 18 Q. Would -- would it be -- would you be able to 16:40:51 19 guarantee to a client, if you were involved in 16:42:01 19 Q. Okay.

16:42:02 20 Is it your understanding that the plaintiffs
16:42:14 21 themselves believed that the Nose patent covered their 16:42:23 22 invention?
16:42:24 23 A. There were a number of things in Nose that
